5. Client Classification as per FINSA

Art. 4 FINSA defines the following classes for clients of financial service providers: «Retail Clients», «Professional Clients» and «Institutional Clients». Each category is assigned a different level of investor protection. ALVE is obliged to classify the client accordingly. The scope of the individual conduct duties of ALVE varies depending on the client segment.

Insofar as a client is not already classified by law as a Professional Client a wealthy private client is entitled to request in writing to change its client classification to a professional client («opting-out»). For further questions please refer to Art. 4 and 5 FINSA.

As general a rule, due to the nature of the services provided and the type of clients, ALVE does not offer its services to Retail Clients.

6. The personally recommended financial service and the risks involved

Under this asset management agreement concluded with Alve Finance AG, ALVE has the right and the obligation to select investments for you within the framework of the investment policy. The investments made can lead to an increase in value, but also to a loss. ALVE guarantees neither a return nor a success of the investment activity.

7. The business affiliations with third parties in connection with the financial service offered

ALVE is independent in the exercise of the financial services offered.

8. The market offer taken into account

ALVE selects the financial instruments recommended for the client from an unlimited range of financial instruments and is not obliged to give preference to the financial instruments of certain issuers. The investment universe can include all financial instruments offered by financial institutes. The applicable strategy, guidelines, restrictions etc. are agreed with the client individually.
